

It Does a Body Good!

The Rhode Island Arts and Health Network is seeking an artist to be artist-in-residence at the Rhode Island Department of Health. During the five-month residency, the selected artist will identify a public health issue and create at least one public project that responds to it. The goals of the Rhode Island Arts and Health Network are engaging in arts-based approaches to achieving health equity, addressing the social determinants of health and attaining health goals for the population.
